Review of the previous 2019 NCFCWMA Meeting

The last North Central Fayette County Wildlife Management Association meeting held at Camp Kubena formally known as Cooper Farm had a good turnout with many members ready to listen and learn from our speakers. One of our speakers came to us from the Texas Parks and Wildlife, Wildlife division biologist Laura Sherrod who spoke on deer and doe permits and doe days. For more information on this topic or any other Wildlife information check out www.tpwd.texas.gov. Laura Sherrod serves Lee and Fayette Counties with offices at 898 East Richmond #104 Giddings, Texas 78942. Phone number for the office is 979-540-2744. Another speaker discussed pond care and treating growth in ponds with fertilizers and proper pond management. What type and how many fish for the pond size was also discussed. Fred Wernette recognized members who had passed this past year and the newsletter was discussed. New members were recognized and dues were collected. Past year activities were discussed along with donations being made to 4-H shooting sports, wildlife judging, Fayette County Wildlife Habitat Education program and 4-H banquet to help our youth further their knowledge and skills in the Wildlife area along with leadership skills. Our scholarship has been set up this past year with much time and effort by the directors and the members on the scholarship committee to fine tune it to help our youth further their educational efforts in the Wildlife field. More information can be found on the website(<http://www.ncfcwildlife.com/>)and we are looking for qualified applicants.

A Fox and Snake Story

By Virgie Hall

Virgie had set up a game camera on her back porch to get pictures of a feral cat that had been coming around. She put some cat food out for the cat hoping it would continue to come by and perhaps keep the mouse and rat population under control. While checking the pictures on the game camera one day to her surprise she saw a picture of a fox eating the cat food on her porch.

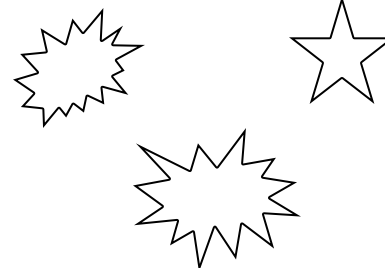

Some time back Virgie shared a story about deer netting being an aid in keeping deer out of your garden. It takes some maintenance, but is very effective. One of the things Virgie has discovered that you have to deal with in using deer netting is snakes. Snakes think they can slither through the netting and then they find out they can't!. They get caught in the deer netting. The pictures show a large copperhead and an unidentified snake caught in the deer netting. Eventually the snakes are disposed of by critters coming by the fence. In the meantime they are a reminder to BE AWARE of snakes, they are out there!

THANK YOU FRED !!!

The North Central Fayette County Wildlife Management Association membership wants to thank Fred Wernette and his daughter, Phyllis Schartz, for putting the newsletter together for us for so many years. Fred and his wife, Barbara, started the newsletter approximately 12 years ago. After Barbara's passing Fred took a year off and then took up getting the NCFCWMA Co-op newsletter to us for the last 5 1/2 years with help from his daughter, Phyllis.

In January of this year(2019) Fred decided he had to let it go. He had other things that needed his time and attention. We want to say THANK YOU FRED for all you and your wife , Barbara, and daughter, Phyllis, did for the Co-op over the last 12 years and your dedication to the newsletter for all those years. Fred, we wish you well and ask God's continual blessing on your life, health and family.

Thank You Wayne Navarro Newsletter in new Hands

So many, most, co-op members, wanted the newsletter to continue. We were blessed when Lana Limmer approached Wayne Navarro, author, writer and publisher of the Ledbetter newsletter, asking him if he would consider taking over and putting together our NCFC Wildlife Co-op newsletter. Fortunately for us he agreed. Immediately there were technical problems with the different computers and programs not working together. The format that Phyllis Schwarz used couldn't be sent to Wayne in a format he could use effectively. So, Wayne had to start from scratch. Little by little Wayne will have everything formatted and the newsletter continues.
